Re: Acquisition of Immunex

I am pleased to tell you that we have agreed to acquire Seattle-based Immunex, one of the biotech industry's fastest-growing and most-respected companies. Strategically, this acquisition is great for Amgen. The company has a product we think is terrific-Enbrel(R), for rheumatoid arthritis patients. Enbrel(R) changes patient's lives in a dramatic way. It is a market-leading product with nearly $1 billion in sales expected in 2002 and potential for $3 billion or more in subsequent years.

Enbrel(R) is the fastest-growing biologic drug ever. Our core competencies in bringing successful drugs to market and optimizing their potential will help Enbrel(R) achieve its full promise. We'll add this additional blockbuster to our portfolio. We'll also become an instant leader in a new therapeutic area, inflammation, enhancing our already strong leadership position in oncology and nephrology. Inflammation is a very large and opportunity-rich area for us and very underserved from a patient perspective. It complements the pipeline products and research we already have in inflammation.

Immunex is a great company with a lot of great people. They have a culture that is very much like ours. They share our values, our biotechnology heritage and they are located on the West Coast.

Financially, the acquisition is attractive to our shareowners. It is very modestly dilutive, less than 5 percent in 2003. Adding Immunex, we expect to increase our long-term product sales growth rate to the low-30s and our cash earnings per share growth rate to the mid-20s for the 2001-2005 period.

While the acquisition of Immunex isn't expected to close until mid-2002, pending customary regulatory approvals and shareholder votes, we are already planning how best to integrate Immunex into Amgen so that all of our goals with this transaction will be met. I will be CEO of the combined company, and the CEO of Immunex, Ed Fritzky, will join Amgen's Board of Directors. We also are fortunate to have two executives from Immunex join Amgen's Executive Committee. Peggy Phillips will be an Executive Vice President, reporting to me. Doug Williams, who now runs discovery research at Immunex, will be a Senior Vice President, reporting to Roger Perlmutter and overseeing discovery research in Seattle.

On behalf of the Executive Committee, I couldn't be more excited about this new chapter in Amgen's development and the opportunity it represents for our company, staff, shareholders and the millions of patients around the world and others who look to us to create the medicines of the future.

Forward-Looking Statements

This document contains forward-looking statements within the meaning of the "safe harbor" provisions of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, including statements about future financial and operating results and Amgen's anticipated acquisition of Immunex. These statements are based on management's current expectations and beliefs and are subject to a number of risks, uncertainties and assumptions that could cause actual results to differ materially from those described in the forward-looking statements. All statements other than statements of historical fact are statements that could be deemed forward-looking statements. For example, statements of expected synergies, accretion, timing of closing, industry ranking, execution of integration plans and management and organizational structure are all forward-looking statements. Risks, uncertainties and assumptions include the possibility that the market for the sale of certain products and services may not develop as expected; that development of these products and services may not proceed as planned; the Immunex acquisition does not close or that the companies may be required to modify aspects of the transaction to achieve regulatory approval; that prior to the closing of the proposed acquisition, the businesses of the companies suffer due to uncertainty; that the parties are unable to successfully execute their integration strategies, or achieve planned synergies; and other risks that are described in the Securities and Exchange Commission reports filed by Amgen, including its most recent Form 10-Q. Amgen conducts research in the biotechnology/pharmaceutical field where movement from concept to product is uncertain; consequently, there can be no guarantee that any particular product candidate will be successful and become a commercial product.

Furthermore, Amgen's research, testing, pricing, marketing and other operations are subject to extensive regulation by domestic and foreign government regulatory authorities. In addition, sales of Amgen's products are affected by reimbursement policies imposed by third party payors, including governments, private insurance plans and managed care providers. These government regulations and reimbursement policies may affect the development, usage and pricing of Amgen's products.

In addition, while Amgen routinely obtains patents for Amgen's products and technology, the protection offered by Amgen's patents and patent applications may be challenged, invalidated or circumvented by our competitors.

Because forward-looking statements involve risks and uncertainties, actual results and events may differ materially from results and events currently expected by Amgen and Immunex. Amgen and Immunex assume no obligation and expressly disclaim any duty to update information contained in this document except as required by law.
